CREATING A HOME FOR
FOR LETTY'S BABIES

Since first opening in 1989, over 1,100 families have received residential drug and alcohol treatment at Letty Owings Center. Since that time, 204 babies have been born drug-free.

Each mother who enters LOC has a different story, but many of the chapters are all too familiar: poor health, poverty, homelessness and—of course, addiction. These mothers, however, share another crucial trait—they are all motivated to turn their lives around. Despite facing almost unimaginable challenges, these young mothers are struggling to break their addictions to drugs and alcohol, maintain custody of their children and learn to succeed in mainstream society.

Recovery is not an easy process, but strong, healthy families are a wise investment. Letty's babies need a safe home when they leave LOC. They need your help to build a future.
